- Start teaching the new syllabus for Year 11
- Start implementing the new Year 11 school-based assessment requirements
- Continue to teach the English Standard Stage 6 Syllabus \(2017\) for Year 12

2026, Term 4

- Start teaching the new syllabus for Year 12
- Start implementing the new Year 12 school-based assessment requirements

2027

- First HSC examination for the new syllabus

Overview

Syllabus overview

The English Standard 11–12 Syllabus aligns with the English Life Skills 11–12 Syllabus to provide opportunities for integrated delivery.

Through collaborative curriculum planning, it may be decided that Life Skills outcomes and content are the most appropriate option for some students with intellectual disability.

Organisation of English Standard 11–12

The organisation of focus areas, outcomes and content for English Standard 11–12 highlights the interdependence of knowledge, understanding and skills in the subject, and the recursive way in which these skills are developed.

Students develop knowledge, understanding and skills through the focus areas:

Year 11

- Reading to write: Transition to English Standard
- Contemporary possibilities
- Close study of literature

Year 12

- Texts and human experiences
- Language, identity and culture
- Close study of literature
- The craft of writing

Image long description: The Year 11 focus areas appear in boxes in a row at the top of the diagram, surrounded by a line labelled 'Year 11'. The focus areas are: Reading to write: Transition to English Standard; Contemporary possibilities; and Close study of literature. The Year 12 focus areas appear at the bottom of the diagram in boxes in a row, surrounded by a line labelled 'Year 12'. The focus areas are: Texts and human experiences; Language, identity and culture; Close study of literature; and The craft of writing. The lines surrounding the Year 11 and 12 focus areas cross through a box in the centre of the diagram, which is titled 'Understanding and responding to texts'.

Protocols for collaborating with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Communities

NESA is committed to working in partnership with Aboriginal Communities and supporting teachers, schools and schooling sectors to improve educational outcomes for young people.

It is important to respect appropriate ways of interacting with Aboriginal Communities and Cultural material when teachers plan, program and implement learning experiences that focus on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Priorities.

Indigenous Cultural and Intellectual Property (ICIP) protocols need to be followed. Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples' ICIP protocols include Cultural Knowledges, Cultural Expression and Cultural Property and documentation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples' Identities and lived experiences. It is important to recognise the diversity and complexity of different Cultural groups in NSW, as protocols may differ between local Aboriginal Communities.

Teachers should work in partnership with Elders, parents, Community members, Cultural Knowledge Holders, or a local, regional or state Aboriginal Education Consultative Group. It is important to respect Elders and the roles of men and women. Local Aboriginal Peoples should be invited to share their Cultural Knowledges with students and staff when engaging with Aboriginal histories and Cultural Practices.

Course description

English Standard 11–12 provides students with the opportunity to analyse, study and enjoy a breadth and variety of English texts, in order to become confident and effective communicators. Students develop the knowledge to analyse, reconsider and refine meaning, and to reflect on their own processes of responding, composing and learning.

What students learn

Through the study of English Standard 11–12, students:

- develop clear communication skills for a range of purposes and audiences
- find information and perspectives to develop their understanding of ideas
- learn to make assumptions about the purpose and meaning of language based on context
- express personal experiences and opinions and reflect on skills as independent learners.

Course structure and requirements

Year 11 course structure and requirements

English Standard Year 11 course (120 hours)	Indicative hours
Reading to write: Transition to English Standard	40
Contemporary possibilities	40
Close study of literature	40

For the English Standard Year 11 course, students are required to:

- complete 120 indicative hours
- complete Reading to write: Transition to English Standard as the first unit of work
- complete Contemporary possibilities and Close study of literature.

Text requirements

There are no prescribed texts for Year 11.

Students are required to study ONE complex multimodal or digital text in Contemporary possibilities. This may include the study of film.

Students are required to study ONE substantial literary print text in Close study of literature, for example prose fiction, drama or a poetry text, which may constitute a selection of poems from the work of ONE poet.

Across Stage 6, the selection of texts must give students experience of:

- texts that are widely regarded as quality literature
- a range of Australian texts
- a range of texts authored by Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples
- a range of types of texts inclusive of prose fiction, drama, poetry, nonfiction, film, media and digital texts
- texts with a range of social, cultural and gender perspectives
- integrated modes of reading, writing, listening, speaking, viewing and representing, where appropriate.

Year 12 course structure and requirements

English Standard Year 12 course (120 hours)	Indicative hours
Texts and human experiences	30
Language, identity and culture	30
Close study of literature	30
The craft of writing	30

For the English Standard Year 12 course, students are required to:

- complete the Year 11 course as a prerequisite
- complete 120 indicative hours
- complete Texts and human experiences as the first unit of work
- complete Language, identity and culture, Close study of literature and The craft of writing.

Text requirements

Students are required to closely study 3 prescribed texts, with ONE drawn from each of the following categories:

- prose fiction
- poetry
- drama OR film OR media OR nonfiction.

Across Stage 6, the selection of texts must give students experience of:

- texts that are widely regarded as quality literature
- a range of Australian texts
- a range of texts authored by Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples
- a range of types of texts inclusive of prose fiction, drama, poetry, nonfiction, film, media and digital texts
- texts with a range of social, cultural and gender perspectives
- integrated modes of reading, writing, listening, speaking, viewing and representing, where appropriate.

The HSC English prescriptions 2027–2030 provides essential information for HSC study for all English 11–12 courses.

Safety and risk management

Schools are required to ensure they follow safety and risk management in delivering the English Standard 11–12 Syllabus.

Texts authored by Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples

Across Stage 6, the study of a range of texts authored by Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Peoples should consider:

- the artistic and Cultural value of these texts, including ideas, arguments and representations of identity, histories and Cultures
- how Country/Place, Community and lived experiences shape the perspectives of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Storytellers and audiences

- ethical responsibilities surrounding Indigenous Cultural and Intellectual Property (ICIP) in the production of texts
- how Storytelling, Aboriginal Languages and Aboriginal English are expressions of Culture, identity and Customary practices
- how the modes of these texts may recognise and contribute to Cultural conventions or practices of oral Storytelling
- how Cultural symbolism, imagery, allusion and irony are used to shape meaning
- how personal values and perspectives are broadened and reconsidered through engagement with these texts
- texts that originate from a range of diverse Communities.

HSC information

Information about curriculum requirements for the HSC are available on Assessment Certification Examination \(ACE\).

Rationale

Rationale for English in Stage 6 curriculum

In acknowledgement of its role as the national language, English is a mandatory subject from Kindergarten to Year 12 in the NSW curriculum. Knowledge, understanding and skills acquired in English are central to students' learning and development.

Language and text shape understanding of individuals and the world. Language allows students to relate to others, and contributes to their intellectual, social and emotional development. In English K–12, students study language in its various textual forms, with increasing complexity, to understand how meaning is shaped, conveyed, interpreted and reflected.

Students engage with literature from Australia and across the world. They develop an understanding of the diversity of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples and the interconnections of Country/Place, Culture and Community. Texts communicate in distinctive ways and are shaped by experiences, knowledge and cultures. By exploring past and contemporary texts with a range of cultural and social perspectives, students broaden their experiences and become empowered in their identities, values and ethics.

Through interrelated practices and experiences in understanding and creating texts, students explore the power, purpose, value and art of English. Practice and experience supports students to become literate and confident communicators, critical and imaginative thinkers, and informed and active participants in society.

The study of English in this syllabus is founded on the belief that language learning is recursive and develops through ever-widening contexts. Students learn English through explicit teaching of language and literacy, and through their engagement with a range of purposeful and increasingly demanding textual experiences.

Rationale for English Standard

The English Standard 11–12 Syllabus provides students who have a diverse range of literacy skills with the opportunity to analyse, study and enjoy a breadth and variety of English texts to become confident and effective communicators.

Students engage with texts that include quality literature from the past, and contemporary texts from Australia and other cultures. They explore language forms, features and structures of texts in a range of academic, personal, social, cultural, historical and workplace contexts. Students study, analyse, respond to and compose texts to broaden their perspectives, access information and assess the reliability of representations. They synthesise the knowledge developed from a range of texts to fulfil a variety of purposes. Understanding and responding to texts provides students with opportunities to appreciate the imaginative and the affective domains, and to recognise the ways texts convey, interpret, question and reflect opinions and perspectives.

The English Standard 11–12 Syllabus supports a range of approaches to interacting with texts so that students become flexible and critical thinkers, capable of appreciating the diversity and variety of cultural heritages that make up Australian society. Students further develop skills in literacy and independent, collaborative and reflective learning required for post-school life, including the world of work and post-school training and education.

Aim

The aim of English in Years 11 and 12 is to enable students to understand and use language effectively. Students have the opportunity to appreciate, reflect on and enjoy literature, and make meaning in ways that are imaginative, creative, interpretive, critical and powerful. Students value the English language in its various textual forms to become thoughtful and effective communicators in a diverse world.

Outcomes and content for Year 11

Reading to write: Transition to English Standard

Outcomes

A student:

- analyses the ways an author's choice of language, form and structure shape meaning in texts of different modes and mediums EST-11-01
- explains the relationships between texts through context, form and language EST-11-02
- explains the ways context and values influence composition and audience response EST-11-03
- composes texts, using language forms and features in new and different contexts EST-11-04
- composes critical and creative texts for a range of audiences and purposes EST-11-05

Content

Students undertake the close reading of quality texts from a variety of modes and mediums. In doing so, they develop the knowledge to appreciate, understand, analyse and evaluate the ways texts convey complex ideas, relationships, endeavours and scenarios. Central to this focus area is developing student capacity to respond perceptively to texts through their own thoughtful writing and judicious reflection on their knowledge and skills as writers. Students read texts that are aesthetically, stylistically or conceptually engaging to inspire or provoke them to respond critically and creatively. Through wide reading and the close study of texts, students develop insights into the world around them, deepen their understanding of themselves and the lives of others, and enhance their enjoyment of reading.

Understanding

- The power of language to shape and influence meaning
- The ways mode, medium and context shape meaning
- The ways various language features, including figurative elements, shape ideas, perspectives and experiences
- The ways close analysis of language and literary devices informs interpretations of familiar and unfamiliar texts
- The ways personal experience is transformed into imaginative texts across a range of purposes, audiences and contexts
- The similarities and differences in language forms, features and structures within and between texts

Responding

- Compose persuasive, discursive and imaginative texts that explore increasingly complex ideas
- Compose texts that make thematic and stylistic connections with other texts
- Compose texts that explore a range of values and perspectives, including their own
- Compose texts that integrate different modes and mediums for a range of purposes and audiences
- Draft, edit, revise and refine texts for a range of purposes and audiences

- Use appropriate metalanguage to assess and reflect on the value of writing
- Use accurate spelling, punctuation, syntax and metalanguage in creating critical and creative texts

Contemporary possibilities

Outcomes

A student:

- analyses the ways an author's choice of language, form and structure shape meaning in texts of different modes and mediums EST-11-01
- explains the relationships between texts through context, form and language EST-11-02
- explains the ways context and values influence composition and audience response EST-11-03
- composes texts, using language forms and features in new and different contexts EST-11-04
- composes critical and creative texts for a range of audiences and purposes EST-11-05
- explains own compositional processes and the ways choices of language, form and structure can shape meaning EST-11-06

Content

Students develop an understanding of the creative possibilities of storytelling in evolving technologies and new modes of communication. Students engage in a detailed study of ONE complex multimodal text and a range of other texts. Students develop an understanding of the power of storytelling to represent ideas, people and events in innovative ways. They explore how these representations are shaped by aspects of culture, context and experience. Students analyse a range of language forms and features related to textual hybridity, reading pathways, interactivity and intertextuality. They appreciate the complex nature of communicating in a contemporary world and the limitations and possibilities of storytelling in a range of modes and mediums.

Understanding

- The language features, text structures and stylistic choices that influence narratives from a range of modes and mediums, including digital texts
- The ways different mediums and technologies shape meaning and influence storytelling
- The ways composers transform and adapt texts for different contexts, purposes and audiences, including appropriations in popular culture
- The impact of intertextuality on purpose, audience and content
- The values and assumptions that are represented and communicated in texts from emerging modes and mediums

Responding

- Experiment with text structures and language features related to specific genres and modes and mediums
- Compose logical, ordered and cohesive texts that build effective arguments in response to the ideas generated through texts
- Compose critical and creative texts that reflect particular values and perspectives, including their own
- Compose texts that reflect on the processes of composition in different mediums and technologies
- Use different processes and technologies to generate, investigate, clarify, organise, refine and present information and ideas

Close study of literature

Outcomes

A student:

- analyses the ways an author's choice of language, form and structure shape meaning in texts of different modes and mediums EST-11-01
- explains the relationships between texts through context, form and language EST-11-02
- explains the ways context and values influence composition and audience response EST-11-03
- composes texts, using language forms and features in new and different contexts EST-11-04
- composes critical and creative texts for a range of audiences and purposes EST-11-05

Content

Students develop their knowledge and appreciation of a substantial literary print text. Through their close study of and personal responses to the text in its entirety, students develop an understanding of the ways that language features, text structures and stylistic choices can be used in literary texts.

Students study ONE substantial literary print text, such as prose fiction, drama or poetry. They identify, analyse and respond to the ideas in the text and the ways in which meaning is shaped. Students examine the conventions that are particular to the chosen literary form, and the ways that authors use, manipulate or challenge those conventions.

Understanding

- The ways textual forms and language features, including style, tone and point of view, shape meaning
- The relationship between language and content in a literary text
- The ways language forms, features and structure conform to, or challenge, accepted conventions
- The ways that different perspectives can affect interpretations of a text

Responding

- Select, interpret and use appropriate textual evidence to support informed personal interpretations of a literary text
- Compose logical, ordered and cohesive texts that build effective arguments in response to the ideas generated from a literary text
- Compose critical and creative texts that reflect particular values and perspectives, including their own

Outcomes and content for Year 12

Texts and human experiences

Outcomes

A student:

- critically analyses the ways an author's choice of language, form and structure shapes meaning in complex texts of different modes and mediums EST-12-01
- explains the relationships between texts through context, form and language EST-12-02
- analyses the ways context and values influence composition and audience response EST-12-03

Content

Students deepen their understanding of how texts represent individual and collective human experiences. They examine how texts represent emotions and qualities related to these experiences. By responding to a range of texts, students explore how texts provide insight into emotional, intellectual, physical, cultural and lived experiences. They explore the ways texts represent identity, culture, acceptance and growth, invite the reader to see the world differently, and challenge assumptions. Students explore how texts can represent the tension between agency and conformity in our human experience, while examining the paradoxes of motivation and behaviour. Through critical and creative responses to texts, students consider the ways that texts encourage them to reflect personally and challenge their assumptions about the nature of human experience.

Understanding

- The language, forms and features of texts that shape meaning for different audiences and purposes in familiar and unfamiliar texts
- The language, forms and features of texts that shape a range of perspectives, personal and public worlds, and diverse human experiences
- The aesthetic qualities of texts and the power of language to express personal ideas and experiences
- Language used for making connections, questioning, affirming, challenging and speculating about texts
- The evaluative language and metalanguage used to make informed judgements about texts and express personal perspectives

Responding

- Develop creative, informed and sustained interpretations of texts, supported by close textual analysis
- Compose creative and critical texts that affirm or challenge ideas, values and perspectives represented in a range of texts

- Compose texts using structures, language features and stylistic elements for specific audiences, to reinterpret ideas and perspectives

Language, identity and culture

Outcomes

A student:

- critically analyses the ways an author's choice of language, form and structure shapes meaning in complex texts of different modes and mediums EST-12-01
- explains the relationships between texts through context, form and language EST-12-02
- analyses the ways context and values influence composition and audience response EST-12-03

Language has the power to reflect and shape individual and collective identity. In this focus area, students consider how their responses to written, spoken, audio and visual texts shape their self-perception. They also consider the impact texts have in shaping individuals' and communities' sense of identity. Through understanding and responding to texts, students deepen their understanding of how language can affirm, ignore, challenge and disrupt prevailing assumptions and beliefs about themselves, individuals and culturally connected groups.

Students study ONE prescribed text in detail and a range of textual material to explore, analyse and assess the ways in which meaning about individual and community identity and cultural perspectives is shaped in and through texts.

Understanding

- The ways personal, social, cultural and historical contexts shape meaning in texts
- The ways specific language features and forms of texts influence perceptions of ourselves, other people and a range of cultural perspectives
- The ways mode and medium shape meaning
- The ways context and implicit cultural assumptions influence the perspectives and ideas of authors
- The ways content shapes the social, moral and ethical positions represented in texts

Responding

- Develop an understanding of the ways language features, text structures and stylistic choices shape points of view and influence audiences
- Use information and ideas for a range of purposes including the development of sustained, evidence-based, logical and complex arguments
- Develop an understanding of how different perspectives, attitudes and values can be represented in texts for meaning and purpose
- Compose informed and cohesive interpretations of texts, supported by close textual analysis

Content

Students develop knowledge, understanding and appreciation of a substantial literary text. Through their development of considered personal responses to the text, students explore and analyse the particular ideas and characteristics of the text and understand the ways in which these characteristics establish its distinctive qualities.

Students study ONE text chosen from the list of prescribed texts. They engage in an extensive exploration and interpretation of the text and the ways the author portrays people, ideas, settings and situations in the text. By analysing the interplay between the ideas, form and language within the text, students develop personal and intellectual connections with the text to appreciate how these elements may affect those responding to it.

Understanding

- The ways texts influence and position readers
- The ways textual forms, language and stylistic choices shape meaning
- The ways mode and medium shape meaning and influence personal responses
- The relationship between text and context
- The ways texts conform to, or challenge, accepted conventions through their textual forms, language and stylistic choices

Responding

- Compose texts that demonstrate their understanding of and appreciation for how language features, form and stylistic choices are effectively integrated to shape meaning and influence responses
- Consider different interpretations of texts derived from a range of perspectives
- Compose informed personal interpretations of a literary text, supported by close textual analysis
- Compose logical, ordered and cohesive texts that build arguments in response to the ideas generated from a literary text

Students strengthen and extend their knowledge and skills as writers. They write for a range of purposes and audiences to convey ideas with power and increasing precision. Through the study of quality texts from the past and contemporary works, students analyse and assess the ways writers use structure, language and form. Through their engagement with these texts, students reflect on the process of writing and apply their knowledge of structure, language and form to create their own sustained and cohesive compositions. They examine how writers of complex texts use language creatively and imaginatively for a range of purposes, to describe the world around them, evoke emotion, shape a perspective or share a vision.

Students generate and explore ideas through discussion and engagement with a range of texts. Through drafting and revising, students experiment with a range of language forms and features, including imagery, rhetoric, voice, characterisation, point of view, dialogue and tone. Students consider purpose and audience to carefully shape meaning in their own imaginative, discursive and persuasive texts. They accurately apply the conventions of syntax, spelling, punctuation and grammar in their own compositions.

Through their critical and creative engagement with these texts, students reflect on the complex and recursive process of writing to further develop their knowledge and application of textual forms and features in their own sustained and cohesive compositions. They compose texts that combine different modes and mediums for a variety of purposes, audiences and contexts.

Students refine and strengthen their own skills in producing imaginative, discursive, persuasive and reflective texts.

Understanding

- The power of language to express ideas, perspectives and experiences
- The forms, language features and stylistic choices that shape imaginative, discursive, persuasive and reflective texts

Responding

- Use different processes to generate, investigate, clarify, organise, refine and present information and ideas

- Use and manipulate genre in a range of modes and mediums for a range of purposes and audiences
- Compose texts by changing context, perspective or point of view, and assess the effectiveness of these changes
- Compose imaginative, discursive, persuasive and reflective texts that make thematic or stylistic connections with other texts and reflect particular values and perspectives, including their own
- Use appropriate metalanguage to assess and reflect on the ways meaning is made in their own writing and the writing of others
- Draft, reflect, edit, refine, revise and present texts for a range of purposes and audiences
